

Jennie Brown
Manager of Operations
jennie.brown@liw3.com

Jennie has spent 15 years leading high-performing learning & development teams in corporate organisations. Her early career focused on operational and technical training as well as behavioural and management development. She has encountered many different corporate landscapes which include an established financial services organisation, an entrepreneurial energy company, the hospitality sector and a global software organisation.

In her most recent corporate role, Jennie worked as International Learning and Development Director; a role which spanned 29 countries in which she developed and led the implementation of a performance management framework, managed talent processes and delivered talent initiatives such as graduate and high-potential programs, managed the engagement strategy and embedded senior leadership development programs.

Jennie works with purposeful energy to create a climate where people can do their best work. She has a strong belief about the potential of people and the difference they can collectively make to the success of an organisation.

Jennie joined LIW as Manager of Operations in February 2016 and is focused on business improvement projects which help LIW to scale globally.

Mini Bio

- Background in corporate learning and development
- Expertise in performance management
- Developed graduate and high potential talent programs
- Lead senior leadership development programs in partnership with external vendors

Qualifications

- Institute of leadership and management level 7 executive coaching
- CIPD level 5 diploma in L&D management
- Hogan Psychometric
- DISC Psychometric
- Kirkpatrick evaluation certificate

